The DIMMER VIEW

by Max Goodwin

The Guard Dog Menace

In this day of endangered species it seems strange that we are now pitting man against animals.

The specific animal is man's best friend — the dog.

Several items involving dogs have become newsworthy in the past few days and we need to put them in perspective.

The latest concerns a Lemon Grove mail carrier who, in the pursuit of his duty, was severely injured in a dog incident as he was carrying mail to a house on Barton st.

The family dog, usually kept fenced, was free because the youngsters, out of school, had inadvertently let the animal loose. He charged the mail carrier, Dale Willey. Willey fell as he turned to defend himself with his leather mail bag. He was unable to get to the dog repellent — a spray of mineral oil and pepper — because he was protecting his face with his hands as the snarling dog stalked him.

The family, hearing his yells, called the dog off and Willey was transported by ambulance to Grossmont hospital where he underwent surgey for a broken hip-thigh. Pins and plates were installed to hold together three breaks in the limb. Such an injury could curtail Willey's ability to continue as a carrier.

A week earlier, a youth attending a bowling party at the L.G. Bowlero was attacked by a guard dog which had escaped from a camper lot in the vicinity. Lemon Grove firemen subdued the animal but not until he had severely damaged the neck and face of the youth. It took more than 400 stitches, said his mother, to close the wounds.

Prior to that, a San Diego City police officer, on the trail of a robbery suspect, was charged by a dog in a garage. His training told him he couldn't escape injury although the dog was chained. He shot the dog. A great outcry resulted. The animal should not have been shot was the general response. What, then, should have been done?

Police and many non-police citizens have come to fear the guard dog. They have seen them trained, in many cases, to destroy. They are killers at worst — maimers at least. Petting the animal is impossible.

Criminals, usually aware of the hazard, stay out of the way of these animals. But the rising incidence in crime has caused more and more people to protect their property with trained dogs in addition to exotic electronic devices. Dogs are more effective because the criminal knows he will be injured.

Some interesting figures were gleaned from the Lemon Grove Post Office regarding letter carriers and dog bite incidence. Jean Veliquette, supervisor of delivery and collection, said dog bites account for nearly all of the postal service industrial accidents locally. Last year, not counting the Willey matter, there were 17 dog bites suffered by Lemon Grove carriers. 9 required medical attention; 8 victims had taken tetanus shots and needed no further care.

In one case the dog crashed through a window to get to the carrier. In another case a German Shepherd came through the screen of the door and got to the target.

A dog attack is a frightening affair. One of the carriers is still suffering a traumatic reaction to a bite of two years ago. Dogs cause him to freeze. He can't function in the vicinity of a dog.

Any owner of a dog that nips a carrier is required to sign a statement that the dog will be kept up during the hour or so the carrier is in the neighborhood. Without the agreement, the Postmaster stops delivery to that address. If the animal is running loose, the entire block is boycotted. That happens here occasionally. When it does the neighbors usually convince the animal owner that he should fence the animal in the interest of neighborhood harmony. And the mail delivery starts again. State law permits the Postmaster to take that cessation action.

A year or so ago a white deer who managed to exist wild in the Balboa Park area died as a result of a tranquilizer shot. Officials wanted to move it for the animal's protection. As in the case of the chained dog, the hue and cry was of great quantity. No such wailing is heard for people who are innocently injured by animals against whom they held no animosity.

The white deer's death and the shooting of the chained watch dog brought a great number of letters to editors, condemning those who caused death to them.

Now, a reaction has set in. Letters are being directed against those who seemingly lost sight of the human element involved.

One, from a Lemon Grove man, A. G. Kneeshaw, responds to letters concerning Patrolman John Flynn who shot the dog while looking for a robbery suspect.

Kneeshaw is a peace officer. His words have authority. He said, "Since policemen are human, Flynn would have been tense, with adrenalin pumping at full force. He was searching for an armed robbery suspect whom he had reason to believe would be dangerous and the possibility of gunfire occupied his mind.

"Suddenly, a large dog viciously loomed up and he apparently believed he was under attack and responded to life-threatening force properly.

"Who are these people who constantly place animal life above that of a human? Why do they constantly second-guess a highly trained patrolman while they have few facts at hand?

"The young man attending a bowling party in Lemon Grove at Christmastime was attacked by a dog and subsequently required about 400 stitches about his neck points up the fact that all dogs are not friendly or quiet.

"What type of vocal minority are these people who would erect statues for dead animals but nothing for the dead and injured policemen who protect them?

"These persons apparently have their priorities improperly [illegible]ned."

A. G. Kneeshaw.

An El Cajon resident wrote:

"I can't believe the comments made by bleeding hearts bemoaning the shooting by a police officer of the attacking German shepherd.

"The officer was well within legal bounds in being on private property since he was in pursuit of a felony suspect. The officer was under attack by the dog and had every legal right to defend himself.

"The very thought of putting a dog's well being over that of a police officer illustrates just how sick our society is."

F. M. Farrar

Depending on your point of view the material collected here is the touching story of three dogs and a deer — or the frightening story of four men.

To us it tells that our criminal justice operation has broken down to such an extent that we employ dogs to protect us because crime has become so rampant we can't pay for the police it would take to handle the criminals that no longer get meaningful penalties for their crimes.

Local Service, Local Control Under Incorporation

Tax Rate Cut Assured as City

The political make-up of the proposed city of Lemon Grove attracted the attention of many of the 125-or-so people who attended the incorporation meeting January 5 at the L.G. Junior High school on a rain-swept night.

The meeting was sponsored by the Lemon Grove Planning Assn. — the group which labored for the past several years developing a plan for the community's future development whether incorporated or not.

Bob Holaday, Planning Assn. president, told the group that cityhood "may be necessary to get our plan into operation."

Karen Thomson and John Stenbeck, representing the L.G. Committee for Incorporation, described in detail how the new city's tax rate would be reduced and where the money would come from to fund the city's operation.

New Legislation

"Many things have changed since incorporation was last attempted here," Chairman Thomson noted. "Reorganization (of districts) legislation has simplified city formation. That reorganization has been going on under the auspices of the County. Boundaries are established that will prevent neighboring jurisdictions from biting off parts of Lemon Grove under incorporation.

"Those who have protested in the past that they like Lemon Grove as it is should realize that it isn't like it was then. Large chunks have been bitten off by San Diego and La Mesa. Look how much smaller the area is than it was 20 years ago.

Small City Concept

Stenbeck said that his job as finance chairman is to get people to understand several things about incorporation.

"We want people to understand that Lemon Grove will never become a big city. It will stay the small city (3¾ square miles) that most of us want.

"We want people to understand that without incorporation we'll be losing a half million dollars a year in sales tax.

". . . that the city will have a strong tax base.

". . . that 75 cents will be the maximum tax rate for the operation of the city . . ."

Two items were emphasized. One, that the L.G. Fire Protection District with its 86.7 cent tax rate would be absorbed by the city and that the entire city tax rate, including fire protection would be 75 cents or less. It probably will be 70 cents, it was agreed. City residents would get a 11-16 cent tax rate reduction at once. City council will set the rate.

County Gets L.G. Tax $

The difference will be made up from the various taxes collected by the state and returned to cities. Funds now generated from Lemon Grove as given to the County of San Diego to be used countywide. Part of the optimistic picture is the fact that the new city will not have to provide services for a growing area since most of the community is already developed.

The other item is local control. Where one supervisor shares Lemon Grove with all of the rest of the area in District 2, the city council would concern itself only with Lemon Grove services and problems. Police, planning, road maintenance, land use, parks and recreation, and transportation cultural affairs will be viewed strictly from a local level. Citizen input will aid in determining the level of these services, it was said.

Another equally important aspect is the $30 per capita sales tax income the city will provide. Much of it comes from fast food outlets here. Mike Perkins, administrative assistant to Supervisor Lucille Moore said ". . . it's becoming the Fast Food Capital of the world."

Revenue Sharing

Perkins also reported that a great number of government grants would be available to Lemon Grove as a city. He mentioned training and employment programs, community beautification programs and others. "A city manager with ingenuity could tap a surprisingly large number of revenue sharing programs," he said.

D. D. Miller, aide to Lucille Moore, said that incorporation information needed by any person or group would be supplied by her office.

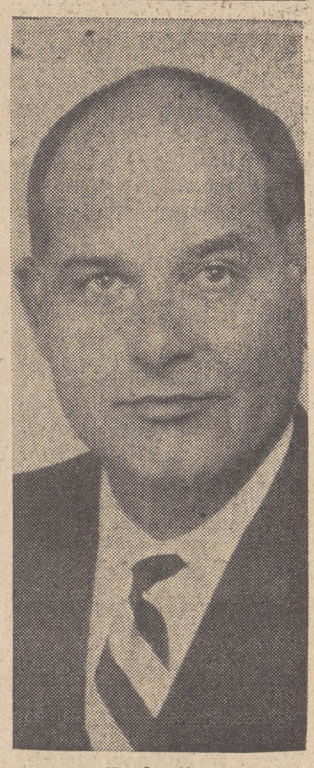

"We want to provide accurate information so that residents can intelligently decide how to vote at election time (March 8).

Public Meeting

The League of Women Voters announced that a public meeting would be sponsored by their group at which all 23 of the candidates for council would be urged to attend. The date and place is yet to be decided but it will be in Lemon Grove, probably at one of the schools and it will be held a week or two before the election.

Stenbeck warned that those distributing literature should pay attention to Prop. 9 rulings which require the name and address of the person paying for the literature. The name of the printer must be printed on literature sent by mail, it was said.

An information office has been set up at 7898 Broadway, at Main st. The office is manned 1-4 p.m. daily. Telephone is 469-2149.

Faulwetter

Faulwetter Seeks Reelection to College Board

William C. Faulwetter, 48, La Mesa attorney and president of the governing board of the Grossmont Community College District is seeking reelection to the board in the March 8 election.

"The advent of collective bargaining for public school employees and the planning and financing of a second campus . . . make fiscal restraint and prudent management more necessary than ever.

"My overriding concern is to establish priorities for the proper allocation of limited resources.

". . . limiting factors are the ability and willingness of the taxpayers to continue to bear the heavy and increasingly onerous burden of taxation to support the activities of the district.

"I believe my initial aim has been realized. Grossmont College is nationally recognized as an outstanding community college and budgets have been kept within responsible limits."

Faulwetter has practiced law in La Mesa since 1961. He holds a Political Science Degree from U.C. Berkeley and a Doctor of Jurisprudence degree from Stanford Law School. He is a Captain, U.S. Naval Reserves and is an active drilling reservist.

He is president-elect, La Mesa Rotary club; past president, S.V. Fire Protection District Board of Directors and of the S.V. Chamber of Commerce, and Lay reader at Santa Sophia church.

10 File for 3 Posts On L.G. School Board

Ten candidates have filed for three positions to be filled by the Lemon Grove School Board of Directors.

The incumbents, three of them, are seeking re-election.

Warren Buckner, 1744 Englewood dr., present president and board veteran; Leonard Klee, 8043 Darryl st., who has been ill duing part of his term, and Craig O. Lake, of 1524 Skyline dr., elected last year to fill the unexpired term of John Linn who moved from the district.

The seven other candidates are Carole J. Chubb, 1909 La Corta, homemaker; Paul D. Copeland, 3881 Massachusetts ave., Instructor-student; Maxine L. Grove, 7154 Mt. Vernon st., homemaker; Victoria S. Morgan, 3202 Vista ave., homemaker-teachers aide; Charles P. Pennell, 2115 Craig ct., Health care administrator who was narrowly defeated by Lake last year; Earl L. Slater, 1905 Sinoma lane, senior computer operator; David J. Spisak, 8301 Mt. Vernon st., police lieutenant.

The election will be March 8 in an election which will include the issue of incorporation and includes the names of 23 candidatees for city council. Five will become charter councilmen if incorporation is approved.

Council Candidates Series to Start

Beginning next week a series of articles on candidates for Lemon Grove City Council will be run. At least four will be run each week on the front page.

Candidates who wish to be covered in the series should contact editor, 469-0101 for an appointment for a picture and interview. There is no charge for this coverage but candidates should call for appointments by January 24.

48 lots, adjacent to the Helix Water Dist. water tank on Dictionary Hill will be sold at auction at 10 a.m. February 9 at the HWD office.

The board also approved replacement of some distributtion lines in the area on Bonita, Cyress, Mt. Vernon, Massachusetts and North streets in Lemon Grove. The estimated cost of replacement is $196,200.

The board also approved the expenditure of $277,000 for improvements to its administrative office building in La Mesa. The work includes bringing the electrical system up to code; refurbishing the heating and cooling systems, and adding partitions to the offices.

Law and Order Program For S.V. Kiwanis Club

The Spring Valley Kiwanis club is marking Wednesday, January 19 as Law and Order Day with a program provided by the people involved in the successful prevention of a burglary in Lemon Grove.

It started when Mrs. Estella Kramer of San Altos pl., Lemon Grove, noticed three black youths cruising in the neighborhood.

When they emerged from their car and peered around the side of a neighbor's house, she called the sheriff's office.

Invoved were Sheriff's detective Rick Lindsey and deputy sheriff Tommy Bovensiep. The three suspects had entered two homes within the few minutes it took the sheriff's men to arrive followed almost immediately by the sheriff's helicopter.

Mrs. Kramer will be given an award for citizen participation. The two officers will be cited for outstanding duty.

Kiwanian Pete Horton is in charge of the program. Eugene Haden will preside. The S.V. Kiwanis meets at 7 a.m. at Ox Bow Inn in Casa de Oro.

15-Year Old Girl Has Drunk Charge

A fifteen year old Lemon Grove girl from the Dupont st. area of Lemon Grove was charged with being intoxicated in public and for battery on a police officer.

The girl was apprehended on University ave. near Massachusetts January 4 showing obvious signs of intoxication an officer reported. She became verbally abusive and later kicked the officer and had to be restrained.

Her prior record showed a charge of grand theft auto, runaway, petty theft, possession of marijuana and curfew violation.

She told police she was 19 years of age.

5-Minute Holdup Caper Nets Two

The holdup was a success but the getaway failed.

Sheriff's deputies arrested two men 5 minutes after police broadcast an armed robbery alert Friday about 9:15 p.m.

Booked in county jail in connection with robbery which netted $200 from the Spring Valley Liquor Store, 9510 Jamacha blvd. were Robert Earl Grimes, 25, and Sidney Johnson, 24, both of southeast San Diego.

Kiwanis to Hear Talk on Cityhood

The L.G. Kiwanis club has invited Jim Dorman, local attorney and a chairman of the Committee for Incorporation, to provide an informational program at the club's January 19 meeting.

The club meets each Wednesday at Little Skandia buffet, Broadway and Kempf sts.

The club's policy is to provide both sides of issues said Kiwanis president Dr. Bob Knauer and anyone knowledgeable in opposition who wishes to present a negative side May do so by contacting one of three Kiwanians: Dr. Knauer at 463-0253; Paul Reynolds at 469-4134, or Dell Lake at 469-2109.

Such speakers would have an opportunity to talk at a subsequent Wednesday meeting, it was said.

Name Change – Route 75 is 117

The four lane east-west freeway in South Bay, known locally as Route 75, has been changed to Route 117 by the California Legislature during last year's session. The number change took effect January 1st.

Route 117 spans a planned 6.7 mile distance, extending from Route 5 near San Ysidro to Brown Field Air Station. However, only 2.4 miles is now built to freeway standards; the remaining section is a two-lane road.

CALTRANS District Director, Jacob Dekema, said "The reason for the change is to avoid confusion with the other section of Route 75 which goes through Imperial Beach and Coronado." The two sections have been connected by a 1.5 mile segment of Route 5.

The freeway portion of Route 117 was completed last April, providing local access to Beyer and Picador blvds. and direct connections to Routes 5 and 805.

More Rain Needed

The season's first substantial storm did not relieve California's long range drought since most of the rainfall was absorbed in the ground, according to the California Department of Water Resources.

More than ten more storms of the same magnitude are needed this winter in order to prevent a serious water shortage in California next summer, a spokesman said.

United Way Seats Its New President

The former executive director of the San Diego Urban League A United Way Agency, was installed January 7 as president of the 75 member United Way Agency Group.

Clarence M. Pendleton, Jr., who has served with the Urban League since June of 1975, took over the presidency at the annual meeting of the Agency Executive Association of the United Way held at the Central Federal Tower.

"The Agency Executive Association (AEA) of the United Way is the most qualified core of professional 'people workers' in San Diego," said Pendleton, "the agencies operate a broader ranger of quality human services, with the least amount of money than any other public or private coalition in San Diego County."

He succeeds Myron Lewis, executive director of YMCA of San Diego and San Diego County.

Other United Way officers installed at the meeting were Storrs Smith, executive director, San Diego County Council, Boy Scouts of America, vice President; Lonnie Rowell, Exploring Family School, secretary; and Barbara Dickey, Girl Scouts, San Diego-Imperial Council, treasurer.

Demos Plan Party For Inauguration

More than 1,000 S.D. County Democrats will receive invitations to celebrate the inauguration of Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale at a gala Inaugural Celebration, Thursday, January 20, at the Hilton Inn on Mission Bay.

The official County celebration — sponsored by the S.D. County Democratic Central Committee — will begin at 8 p.m. and feature a live report by Congressman Lionel Van Deerlin on a direct telephone line from the inaugural celebrations in Washington.

Guests will be treated to live music and receive free souvenir inaugural buttons, said Dorothy Oberle, celebration chairman.

Reservations for the $10 a person event are available by calling 299-6183 or 299-6182.

Mrs. J. H. Kester, 469-4511, will take reservations.

Whale Watching Course Offered for Youngsters

Sea World is offering young people an unparalleled opportunity to learn about "The World of the Whale."

It is the third consecutive year for the unique education program for students in the third grade or above and includes a gray whale-watching expedition on a chartered boat, as well as an in-depth presentation at Sea World depicting whale biology, behavior and natural history.

Sessions are at 9 a.m. on an almost daily schedule until February 16 except weekends at a cost of $4.25 per student.

Reservations are required in advance by calling 222-6363 ext. 351.

Sea World's education program begins at the Mission Bay marine park where students come face to face with small, toothed whales, such as white-sided and bottlenosed dolphins. Youngsters get a close-up view of white whales (belugas) and pilot whales that swim in exhibit areas which simulate the animals' natural environments.

During a special "World of the Whale" show starring Shamu, Sea World's three-ton killer whale, students take a close look at the natural behaviors of these skillful, cooperative hunters, their superb adaptations to the sea and the techniques utilized to train these highly intelligent marine animals.

Next is a look at gray whales — like the ones that pass within a few miles of San Diego's Point Loma, migrating from the icy waters of the Berring Sea to the temperate lagoons of Mexico's Baja Peninsula.

The gray whale segment begins with a slide show introducing students to Gigi, the only baleen (gray) whale ever to live in an oceanarium.

Gigi joined Sea World in March, 1971 and stayed at the park a full year. During that time scientists conducted the most comprehensive and difficult research projects ever undertaken with a gray whale. The slide show traces Gigi's stay at Sea World — a period that saw her grow almost ten feet in length, and gain nearly five tons in weight.

During the peak of the gray whale's migration past San Diego, Sea World is including a two-hour whale watching excursion in its "World of the Whale" education program. Aboard a chartered boat, during the mid-day expedition, Sea World's education staff offers informal out-of-the-classroom information on the huge mammals, their behaviors and history.

AMVET Service Van Aids Area Veterans

A free information service for all veterans and their families is being offered by the AMVET Mobile Service on January 21 1-6 p.m. in El Cajon.

The new mobile service van will be at the Two Guys Shopping Center, 345 N. Magnolia ave. It is manned by trained AMVET service officers to serve those who live some distance from the VA regional office in San Diego.

Service van officers are veterans trained to know and understand laws pertaining to veterans benefits. They urge all veterans, veterans' widows and dependents to make sure they are receiving the benefits to which they are entitled. The service is free.

Update Shows Settlement Near For GUHSD Teachers' Contract

A current report on negotiations between teachers and management in the Grossmont Union High School District show that both parties have agreed upon a 7 per cent salary increase, a 10 per cent of step-and-class schedule for summer school teaching, $797 in fringe benefits and a previously proposed step-and-class schedule.

Coaching salaries have been accepted, also. Head varsity coaches with 1-3 years experience will get $100; 4-6 years, $1,250; 7 years, $1500.

Junior varsity coaches and head coaches without assistants will receive $800 for 1-3 years experience; $1,000, 4-6 years; $1,200 7 years, according to the proposals.

Bargaining teams have also tentatively agreed on policies relating to various leaves and on class size.

All agreements are between teachers' and management's bargaining teams and remain tentative until teachers in the district vote approval of the total package.

Boundary Shifts Said Temporary Solution to GUHSD Overcrowding

A study of the southernmost schools in the Grossmont Union High School District shows that effects of district boundary changes are expected to be negated by continued development in the East County.

The decision was made a year ago by the GUHSD governing board to redistrict the boundaries for its nine schools to relieve overcrowded classrooms at certain schools. Worst off are Santana and Grossmont High which were 211 and 298 students respectively above their designed capacities.

The impact of the boundary changes was somewhat negated by an amendment in the action allowing students already attending one school to apply for an intradistrict transfer back to their original school if they were reassigned away.

The transfer was also available to new incoming students if they had siblings already attending high school.

Those provisions were added after a large group of students and parents complained about the redistricting to the school board.

In Lemon Grove and Spring Valley, the intended thrust of the boundary changes was to move students from Monte Vista to Mt. Miguel, a school with a recommended capacity of 2854 students. Miguel has had fewer students than its capacity — only 2479 according to an October 1976 report.

Students were to be moved from Monte Vista to make room for students transferred from Valhalla High.

Valhalla students were to be reshuffled to make room for El Cajon High transfers and El Cajon's southern fringe of students were to be transferred to permit more students from Santana to attend El Cajon.

The transfers were expected to leave Monte Vista with a surplus of 134 students but the intradistrict transfer option left the school with an enrollment 43 students below capacity by October last year.

Mt. Miguel, whose 2854-student recommended limit is highest of the nine schools, was 375 students short of capacity in October, a district report shows. The boundary shifts were expected to leave the school only 222 below its recommended assignment level.

In nearby Helix, serving students in La Mesa and a portion of Lemon Grove, attendance in October was 190 below its ideal level of 2718. If intradistrict transfers were not permitted last year, Helix would likely have had a 28 student surplus, the report shows.

The District regards Monte Vista as a potential trouble spot in view of the rate of growth in the eastern Spring Valley, Rancho San Diego area. An extended day schedule, in which two separate class days are overlapped, is being considered at Monte Vista.

Deadline Is Near For Women's Award

Deadline for filing nominations for the Lemon Grove/Spring Valley Soroptimist Internatioal "Women Helping Women" Award is Jan. 15.

The Award is given to a woman who has done the most to help women in the Lemon Grove and Spring Valley communities by inspiring example or direction.

The Award's presentation will take place at the Women Helping Women Awards Breakfast February 23.

Nominations may be made by individuals, organizations, or businesses. Nominations can be submitted to Lois Heiserman, 466-1034.

Little Theatre Group Offers 'Season' Mon.

Experimental Theatre Company (ETC), a project of the El Cajon Community Theatre, will present "The Season and other games," Monday for one night only, in the Little Theatre at El Cajon Valley High School, 1035 E. Madison ave.

Curtain is at 8:30 p.m. and tickets, $1, may be reserved by calling 444-6339.

The presentation is composed of several original short plays, created by members of the company. All original material is used. It is designed to be an evening of comedy, the content of which will be adult in nature.

ETC was formed to provide local artists an opportunity to experience the total magic of theatre, from its inception to the final product. The company works in repertory, thus allowing each member to develop within every aspect of production.

Program Views Opera

S.D. Opera's Town Hall Lecture Series will offer a talk on "Die Fledermaus" presented by stage director Lofti Mansouri 1 p.m. January 17 in the House of Hospitality, Balboa Park. Tickets are $2.50.

An optional social hour and luncheon will precede the lecture.

Mansouri will also direct "Die Fledermaus" January 23, 25, 28, and 30 in the S.D. Civic Theatre. Conductors for the first three performances will be Judith Somogi, first woman to conduct the New York City Opera, and Manoro Kanouse for the final performance.

Bates Heads Supervisors

Supervisor Jim Bates has been elected chairman of the board for 1977.

Second District Freshman Lucille Moore was elected vice chairman.

As chairman, Bates will preside at board meetings, public hearings and board conferences. Moore will preside in his absence.

Bates was elected to the board in November 1974. His term expires in January 1979. he succeeds Lee Taylor as chairman.

Home Fed Advances Spring Valley Woman

Dorothy A. Corkill of Spring Valley has been promoted to assistant supervisor in the Financial Division at Home Federal Savings & Loan Assn., according to Richard J. Neubert, senior vice president.

Corkill, who began working for Home Federal in 1974 as a new accounts clerk, previously worked for State Savings and Loan in Texas.

She has attended the Savings and Loan Institute classes in Supervisory Personnel Management.

She has two children.

State Requires L.G: To Help Handicapped

A state mandate requiring the Lemon Grove school district to provide facilities for 50 handicapped children faced the District Board of Trustees Tuesday night.

The State is pressuring the district to provide these facilities by 1978 for the handicapped which include some 34 elementary students locally.

Dr. Robert Sutton, Superintendent, told the Board the State regulations allow districts less than 8,088 students to shift the burden to the County.

But the County wants Lemon Grove to handle it.

"The responsibility is bouncing back and forth between our district and the county," Sutton said, "We are just not equipped to do that sort of thing."

"These handicapped children may have substantial ability but they have special needs," he continued, "We could find a classroom but this is going to take special facilities. We just don't have the funds available."

The board did pass authorization to hire two parttime teacher's aids to provide services to two second graders who have lost their hearing. The state will pick up 75 per cent of the tab.

Also in Tuesday's meeting:

— the Board decided to hold next month's meeting tentatively at the Mt. Vernon School due to the election.

— the state Quality Review Document came in with Lemon Grove schools scoring in the 80th percentile.

— and the Board adopted an air pollution notification policy.

UCSD Opens Winter With King Tribute

The 1977 concert season of the UC San Diego Music Department opens with a tribute to Martin Luther King Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Mandeville Auditorium with the UCSD Gospel Choir directed by Cecil Lytle.

The concert will be highlighted by the presentation of a work by contemporary composer Luciano Berio to be performed by SONOR, a Music faculty ensemble conducted by Bernard Rands.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Bert Turetzky and Friends will perform Wednesday, January 19, at 8 p.m. in Mandeville Auditorium. The concert, a blend of music theater, jazz, early American music and music from the Renaissance, features Turetzky on the bass, banjo and guitar, Nancy Turetzky, flute, Cecil Lytle, piano, Ann Chase, voice.

Special effects are provided by UCSD composer Pauline Oliveros, work, "Double Basses At Twenty Paces," already a classic of contemporary repertory. And a premier San Diego performance of "The Last Contrabass," a brilliant theater piece for narrator and contrabass by Eugene Kurtz.

Tickets available at the Turntable, La Jolla, UCSD Box Office and at the door.

This Week's RECIPE

Chicken Chinese With Potatoes

Stir-fry cooking is catching on. The Chinese style cooking method is a quick way to prepare a savory dish with an oriental flair.

Chinese Chicken and Potatoes put the stir-fry method to work to produce a filling, yet low-calorie dish. Spices and bean sprouts five this one-dish meal its oriental flavor.

CHINESE CHICKEN AND POTATOES

- 2 tbsp. salad oil
- 2 medium potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced
- 4 chicken breast halves, boned skinned, cut into strips
- 1 package (6 oz.) frozen snow peas, thawed
- 1 can (16 oz.) bean sprouts, drained
- 3 stalks celery, thinly sliced
- 4 large mushrooms, sliced
- ½ cup chicken broth
- 3 tbsp. soy sauce
- 1 tbsp. cornstarch

In large skillet or wok, over medium-high heat, in hot oil, cook potatoes and chicken, stirring frequently, 5 minutes, or until lightly browned. Add vegetables; cook; stirring, until tender and crisp. Meanwhile, in small bowl, combine broth, soy sauce and sherry. Stir in cornstarch until blended. Pour into skillet and cook, stirring, until sauce is smooth and thickened.

Makes four servings.

Seminar Readied for Seniors Fitness

The county-wide Committee on Planning for Seniors (COMPS), in cooperation with the City of San Diego and other agencies of government, has developed a physicial fitness program designed for senior citizens.

Rene Regalot, a physical fitness specialist for the City's Park & Rec. Dept., will conduct a two-day seminar explaining the program from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon, Monday and Tuesday, in the ballroom of the Balboa Park Club.

The main objectives of the seminar are to familiarize senior citizens with the value and application of a regular schedule of exercise, and to train senior citizens to become fitness leaders in order that they may in turn conduct physical fitness classes in their own geographical areas.

Registration Opens At Women's College

BASKETBALL GREATS — The Harlem Globetrotters will appear at the Sports Arena Friday, January 28 at 8 p.m. under the sponsorship of the San Diego chapter of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi.

Chapter president Larry Thomas said net proceeds from the contest, which pits the Trotters against the New Jersey Reds, will go toward support of the society's college scholarship fund. The appearance also will include an all-star variety show.

Pictured here are Meadowlark Lemon, left, player-coach for the Trotters and probably the best trick shot artist the game has ever known, and Fred "Curly" Neal who has never shot less than 52 per cent from the field.

Dan Fouts, Randy Jones Sign in for American Airlines Golf Classic

PHOENIX — Seven prominent young quarterbacks, including two who led their teams to divisional playoffs, will compete in the 11th annual American Airlines Golf Classic January 28-30, announced tournament chairman Randall Malin.

Bert Jones, Baltimore Colts, and Steve Grogan, New England Patriots, who quarterbacked their teams to the American Football Conference playoffs, will join Ken Anderson, Cincinnati Bengals; Joe Ferguson, Buffalo Bills; Dan Fouts, San Diego Chargers; Bob Avellini, Chicago Bears, and Dan Pastorini, Houston Oilers, in the 54-hole event at McCormick Ranch Country Club near Scottsdale.

One football and baseball star are paired in this better ball competition. First prize is $10,000, which the winning team splits.

No quarterback has ever been on the winning side in 10 Classics. Several have come close, including Otto Graham and Daryl Lamonica (second), Anderson, Pastorini and John Brodie (third) and Jim Hart and Greg Cook (fourth).

Grogan and Avellini will be making their debuts in this prestigious event.

Malin said Cy Young Award winners Jim Palmer, Baltimore Orioles, and Jones, San Diego Padres; MVP catcher, Thurman Munson, New York Yankees; outfielder Reggie Jackson, New York Yankees; third baseman Mike Schmidt, Philadelphia Phillies, and pitcher Don Sutton, Los Angeles Dodgers, will supply their abundant talent in the 54-hole tournament.

Other entries include the defending champions from New York, Graig Nettles, Yankees, and former Packers star; Ed Podolak, Chiefs, and Steve Zabel, Patriots.

A companion feature is the VIP Championship, comprised of leading businessmen throughout the country.

3rd Biggest Purse in Crosby Civic Tourney

The Kathryn Crosby/Honda Civic Golf Classic, with its $165,000 purse is the third largest ever offered in a Ladies Professional Golf Assn. event.

The event will be March 23-27 at Whispering Palms Country Club.

Mrs. Crosby, wife of Bing Crosby whose annual golf classic at Pebble Beach is one of the sport's major events, will serve as honorary chairman.

The $165,000 is four times larger than any pervious women's tournament played in the San Diego area. The winner is expected to receive a minimum of $25,000.

Ray Volpe, LPGA commissioner who has engineered both a substantial increase in purses and in spectator interest for women's golf, said that the Kathryn Crosby/Honda Civic Golf Classic along with the Colgate/Dinah Shore event in Palm Springs, scheduled for the following week, combined to offer women pros nearly $500,000 prize money during a 14-day stretch.

"The LPGA tour has grown significantly in the past year and this tournament will accelerate such growth," Volpe said.

Volpe and Don Ross, tournament director, believe that the back-to-back scheduling insures San Diego of all the tour's top players.

"Without a doubt, it'll be the finest women's field ever assembled for golf fans in this area," Ross said.

1975 Rookie

Amy Alcott, 1975 LPGA rookie-of-the-year and among the top twenty players last season, represented the women pros at the announcement.

"'Having the involvement of the America Honda Motor Co. in the LPGA is wonderful by itself but also to have Kathryn Crosby associated with women's golf is almost too good to be true," Alcott said. "No one has to be told what her husband has done for the sport."

Ross said that although the tournament is not directly being patterned after the Crosby Pro-Am, celebrity golfers will be a prominent part of the main 72-hole event.

The four competitive rounds will begin March 24 with only the women participating. The field will be cut to the low 60 scorers (and ties) for Saturday-Sunday play, with the qualifiers paired with celebrities for the final two rounds.

"People enjoy watching the celebrities along with the professionals and by joining them for the Saturday and Sunday rounds we're giving more spectators the opportunity of seeing both," said Ross.

120 Women

Ross also explained that it would have been impossible to accommodate all the celebrities anticipated along with a full professional field the first two days of the event. More than 120 women are expected to compete.

The entire women's field also will participate in a pro-am the day prior to the start of the 72-hole competition. One pro will be paired with three amateurs in this event which will feature scramble competition.

"Kathryn plans on having a celebrity field similar to her husband's at Pebble Beach," Ross said. "And early indications are that she'll have just as difficult a time as Bing in handling all the requests."

Mrs. Crosby, who presently is in New York City doing a play, said that she long has wanted to assist women's golf in general and the LPGA in particular. Trying to emulate her husband's world-recognized tournament would give her great satisfaction.

Mrs. Crosby, who is a registered nurse, said that the beneficiary of the tournament proceeds would be the Hahn School of Nursing at the University of San Diego, established for nurses to acquire college and post-graduate academic degrees. School officials said that the money would be directed to the scholarship fund.

Bobby Allison Switches To Matador for New Year

RIVERSIDE -- Bobby Allison, claiming he is responding to an overwhelming response from his fans, will return to racing at the wheel of an American Motors Matador in 1977, beginning with the Winston Western 500 stock car race at Riverside International Raceway January 16.

Allison quit the Roger Penske team in the middle of the final event of the 1976 season, the Times 500 at Ontario, to end his first winless year of NASCAR Winston Cup competition since he joined the circuit full time in 1966.

Neither Allison nor Penske has commented on the reason for the split between them—two weeks after a Penske announcement that Bobby would again drive his Mercury on the circuit in 1977 — but the fact remains that in 10 previous seasons he had won 46, including two years when he won 10 each.

Allison told Raceway president Les Richter that he had already made up his mind to "go it alone" next season, but the idea for driving a Matador again came from his fans.

4 of 5 Want Him Back

"When I quit Penske I got a lot of mail," Bobby said. "Four out of five of the letters said they wished I'd go back to the Matador. I called American Motors, and they said they would be interested, and I said I'd be willing to stick my neck out."

It's not a factory racing effort, Allison said, but American Motors — smallest of the Big Four manufacturers in this country — will supply some parts already on hand and give technical help when and where it can.

"That's more than I could get from Chevrolet or Ford," Allison said.

Sells It Off

In Hueytown, Ala., Allison has been closing out his car-building operation and selling off everything that doesn't apply to the Matador racing program. Ads for his sportsman stock cars and support equipment have already appeared in national racing newspapers.

The car will be a 1977 Matador opera coupe similar to the 74 model he drove to a controversial victory in 1974 at Ontario and in the very next race, the 1975 Winston Western 500 at Riverside.

The controversy was over illegal engine parts found during the post-race teardown at Ontario. Despite the flap Allison was allowed to keep his victory, paying instead a large fine. His win with a totally legal car and engine at Riverside two months later was personal vindication to the stock car racing veteran.

In 1975 Allison also won both 500-milers at Darlington, S.C., in the Matador, which was a crowd favorite because of its particular underdog status, being the only American Motors product entered in any Winston Cup race.

Horse Power Problem

Allison remembers the Matador fondly, because he was competitive in the car, in contrast to his troubles with the Penske Mercury that always seemed to him to be down on horsepower.

The new campaign will mean an end, temporarily at least, to Allison's barnstorming sideline as a sportsman stock car driver, a second career that had already been curtailed after his serious accident last summer at Minneapolis in a sportsman race.

TAKE FIVE

By John E. Wirges

The Andy Williams-San Diego Open is unique in the world of sports. And in the world of sports business, too. Tourney folks turn a hand for the future of their sport. And in the usual cutthroat world of play-for-pay, that ranks as rare.

AWSDO funds support the San Diego County Junior Golf Association which provides clinics and tournaments for some 600 area swingers ranging in age from 5 through 17 in both the boy and girl types.

JGA activities keep youngsters busy most of the summer developing championship swings and deadly putting. Nearly all area prep stars come from JGA ranks and many earn scholarships to colleges and universities where the bright promise of the future is given a helping hand.

Unfortunately, many professional sports turn their backs on youth development, and some, like basketball, even raid prep ranks for talented players years before they're emotionally ready for the steady diet of pressure that comes wed to money games.

Even without professional raiding, parents, coaches and a wide assortment of other non-thinking, unskilled, over-zealous, under-trained "experts" make a mockery of most youth sporting activities.

It's "kill," "Kill," "KILL" with Pop Warner potentates who relive a lost youth, dreaming of the time, a quarter century back at East Cupcake High, when they were king of the single wing.

Little League managers talk of "major league moves" when they ruin, through stupidity, the promising arms of young hurlers by having them throw curves and sliders.

"You've got to want to win," chant youth coaches time and time again, demanding spartan discipline in response to their unskilled teachings.

And when they lose, "We didn't want it bad enough," they say, putting a weight of guilt on youngsters who gave their best.

It's not just the format of golf, it's the quality of the folks who run the program that keeps such pressures off junior golfers.

Occasionally some parent will demand extra practice when a nine year old misses too many putts, but those in the program discourage such "Little League-ism" when it shows its ugly head.

"Junior Golf should be fun," claims Mrs. A. S. "Lou" Smith, the mother of the program. "It's a program for everybody. It only costs three dollars a year and if a youngster can't afford clubs, we'll do our best to find some for him or her."

Parents are not allowed to score for their own children. And no coaching during play. The youngsters are on their own, from the 10-and-under class to the nearly grown, par busting seniors in the 15 through 17 class.

They develop perfect swings, a solid game, mature composure and make friends with youngsters from around the block, across the nation and around the world.

The high light of the year's junior activities is the Junior World, where youngsters come from distant lands to challenge San Diego courses and enjoy the city's hospitality.

And it's all made possible by the care and concern of the Andy Williams-San Diego Open directors. They enjoy the present, but they insure the future with a meaningful assist.

It would be nice if a product of San Diego's junior program won the AWSDO some day. Both Gene Littler and Billy Casper took titles in the fore-runner before Williams helped boost the tourney into a major stop on the PGA tour. But none since.

And if a local golfer doesn't turn the trick this year, the promise is there for next year. Or the next.

That's a pretty good thought to keep when buying your AWSDO tickets.

The next registration dates to follow are Wednesday, January 19, 7 p.m. - 9 p.m., and Saturday, January 22, 10 a.m. - 3 p.m.

All eligible girls who want to sign up for the season, must have a parent, birth certificate, and $7 registration fee.

League Player Agent, Dee Opfer, is available at 465-7212.

3 Games in 4 Nights for Mariners

The San Diego Mariners return to home ice competition with seven home games for the month of January. Three of those games will be played this week at the San Diego Sports Arena.

Tonight, the Cincinnati Stingers, paced by the high scoring Dennis Sobchuk, make their first local appearance since October 9 (opening night) when the two clubs skated to a wild 7-7 tie.

Cincinnati defeated the Mariners January 8 in Cincinnati 2-1 paced by the strong goaltending of Norm Lapointe.

The game with the Stingers is Banner Night. Fans are invited to bring their best work of art, in the form of a banner, to create a "Welcome Home" atmosphere for the road-weary San Diegans. Prizes will be awarded for best banners.

Saturday, the Calgary Cowboys made their second local appearance of the campaign.

The Birmingham Bulls take to the Sports Arena ice on Sunday in a "Family Night" game. All youngsters, 14 years of age and under, accompanied by an adult can purchase tickets for half price in any ticket category for this game.

Tickets for all Mariners games are $7.50, $5.50 and $3.00 and are available at the Mariners office at the Sports Arena, Bill Gamble's Men's Stores and all Select-A-Seat locations in San Diego county.

Face-off for all Mariners games in 7 p.m.

All-Star Game on TV

The 1977 edition of the WHA All-Star game will be shown to area hockey fans via KPBS, Channel 15 Tuesday.

Delayed telecast from Hartford, Connecticut is 9:30 p.m. San Diego time.

Mariners participating for the West squad in the WHA's fifth mid-season classic are defenseman Kevin Morrison (2nd time), defenseman Paul Shmyr (5th time), center Andre Lacroix (4th time), right wing Norm Ferguson (2nd time) and center Joe Noris (1st time).

New P.R. Executive

Bruce Binkowski has been named Director of Public Relations for the San Diego Mariners. Binkowski, 27, a veteran of area publicity has held similar positions with the S.D. Gulls and the S.D. Conquistadors. He also worked in the publicity departments of the S.D. Rockets and the Houston Rockets.

He is a lifelong San Diego resident and a graduate of USD.

Robinson, Williams Arena Indoor Games

San Diego's Arnie Robinson, the Olympic Games gold medalist in the long jump, and silver medal winner Randy Williams have filed entry for the annual Jack in the Box Indoor Games, Friday night, February 18, at the San Diego Sports Arena.

Robinson's convincing victory was one of the bright spots for the United States at the Montreal Olympic Games. Arnie's story is made all the more interesting by the fact he was only an average competitor in high school.

The lean 6-3 athlete kept on improving, capturing the bronze medal at the Munich Olympics in 1972. At Montreal, it was all his as he won the event on his very first jump.

Williams, the USC graduate, was the gold medalist in the Munich Olympics.

Randy and Arnie have been friendly rivals for several years now. Their goal at San Diego will be Bob Beamon's long-standing world indoor mark, an effort both men have topped outdors.

Quarter Horses Return To Los Alamitos Track

LOS ALAMITOS — The $15,000-added Directors' Handicap figures to return the stakes stars to the spotlight and highlight the quarter horse racing action at Los Alamitos this weekend.

The Saturday event figures to bring out such speedsters as She's Precious, Wanta Go, Azure Request, Little Blue Sheep, Heza Charger, Native Creek and Twin Jet. It will be the first appearance of the year for the stakes stars that have been resting since the Dec. 31 Auld Lang Syne.

Quarter horse racing continues on a six-night a week basis, Monday through Saturday, until the Feb. 10 conclusion of the Horsemen's Quarter Horse Racing Assn. winter meeting. Post time for the first race $2 exacta every night s 7:45 p.m.

The Big Prize

Ontario's new lottery is offering five million dollar prizes at six drawings a year.

Prothro Gets Max Coley As Replacement for Walsh

Max Coley is the new offensive coordinator of the San Diego Chargers, it was announced by Charger head coach Tommy Prothro Tuesday.

Coley joins the Chargers after serving five years (1972 76) as offensive coordinator of the Denver Broncos and three years (1969-71) as offensive backfield coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers. With the Broncos, Coley's offensive units produced 175 touchdowns and featured such big-play players as Floyd Little, Otis Armstrong, and Rick Upchurch.

At San Diego, Coley, 50, replaces Will Walsh, who resigned to become head coach at Stanford University.

"I feel great about this new position," said Coley. "It will be enlightening and educational to work under Tommy Prothro. I've always considered him one of the finest coaches in football. I want to pick his brains."

Coley was born in Oklahoma. He attended high school in Tulsa and was a fullback at San Jose State.

He began his coaching career at Tulare (Ca.) High School and became backfield assistant at San Jose State (1955-59), where his pupils included S.D. State coach Claude Gilbert, a fullback, and Philadelphia Eagle coach Dick Vermelli, a quarterback.

Women Cagers Host Fresno, Fullerton

The S.D. State U. women's basketball team returns home this week when it hosts Fresno State tonight in a tuneup for its Western Collegiate Athletic Assn. opener at home Friday against Fullerton State.

Both evenings feature a JV game at 5:45, followed by the Varsity contests at 8 p.m., with action slated for Peterson Gym.

In last week's action the Aztec women captured fourth place in the eight-team Chico Invitational Tournament. In the tourney San Diego State whipped Pepperdine, 62-45, while dropping decisions to Chico State and Long Beach State. The Aztec record slipped to 2-5 on the season.

Chico State defeated S.D. State 62-53 in second-round action, while the Aztecs dropped an 81-60 decision to Long Beach State in the battle for third place.

USCAA Cites Wheeler

S.D. State U. cross country coach Bob Wheeler was recently named co-winner of the U.S. Cross Country Assn's. District 8 Coach of the Year. Wheeler shares the honor with Oregon's Bill Dellinger.

Wheeler, 25, is in his second year at S.D. State, where he works under head track coach Dick Hill in handling the cross country program and coaching the dstance runners in the track program.

Wheelr's State team routed the opposition in capturing this year's PCAA cross country title. In the NCAA Championship competition in Denton, Texas in November, his squad nabbed an eighth place finish to close out the most successful cross country season in Aztec history.

Padres Get Four Pitchers In January Free Agent Draft

The San Diego Padres went exvclusively for pitching in the Regular Phase of Tuesday's annual January Free Agent Draft as the Pads selected two righthanders and two southpaws before bowing out of the selections after four rounds.

San Diego's number one pick was righthander Kevin Chapman, a sophomore at Mt. San Antonio College in Walnut, Ca. Chapman (6-0, 170, 19 years old) was named as his club's Outstanding Freshman last season after posting an overall record of 8-1, 3.68.

An All-Coast Conference selection, he pitched in 12 games for Mt. SAC with 49 strikeouts in 78 innings. In conference play he was 4-1, 3.70 and also played leftfield on occasion with a batting average of .364.

The second round pick by the Padres was lefthander James Haight out of Wilmington College in Delaware. The 19-year-old Haight is 6-3, 160 pounds and only eligible for the draft because his college had dropped baseball.

In the third round, San Diego tabbed lefty Michael Bungarz from Chabot Junior College in northern California. A sophomore, Bungarz is 19 years old, 6-1 and weighs 190 pounds.

The last pick by the Padres was righthanded pitcher Mark Boggs out of Cleveland State Junior College in Tennessee.

The Padres were drafting in the number seven position in the Regular Phase and will be picking in the number 20 spot later today in the Secondary Phase.

Local Racers Qualify For Saturday's Permatex

Ron Esau, an El Cajon racer, has qualified for the 11th annual Permatex 300 stock car races at Riverside to be run Saturday.

Esau was fourth best qualifier with an average speed of 108.317 miles an hour in his 1972 Monte Carlo.

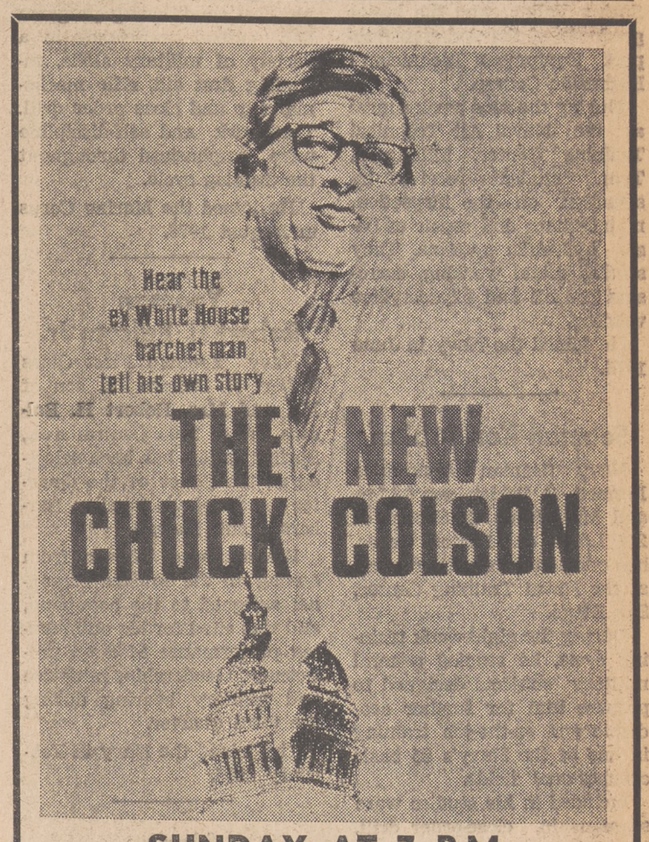

He will start on the outside of the second row.

Lanny Pemberton of Lemon Grove also qualified with a speed of 102.276.

Karate Shop Loser

A tape player, portable teevee and $10 in petty cash was missing when Richard Albert Spears opened his karate shop January 4.

Sheriff's deputies reported that the door was found unlocked and the items valued at $315 were missing.

At Security Pacific Bank, you can borrow on the money you have in your house.

Our simple interest Homeowners Loan Program means you can put the equity in your house to work.

The key word is equity. Quite simply, equity is the cash you've invested in your house plus its increase in market value since you bought it.

And in recent years, that's probably a lot. Why not use it? You may be able to borrow from $5,000 up, based on the equity in your house. And the loan will in no way affect the low interest rate you have on your first mortgage.

You can take up to twelve years to pay it back, and if you should want to pay it back sooner, there is no penalty whatever. Just 12% annual percentage rate. Quite a bit lower than most installment loans, we might add. And our processing costs are low, too. Just $75. A glance at the chart will give you a pretty good idea of a program that will fit your income and your needs.

Sacramento Starts Cracking Down On Off-Road Vehicle Violations

SACRAMENTO — Off-road vehicles have a whole new set of rules to follow when they hit the trails this year.

Major revisions in the California Vehicle Code are:

— a speed limit of 15 mph within 50 feet of any campground, campsite, or concentration of people or animals.

— Reckless driving "with a willful and wanton disregard for the safety of other persons or property" now carries a stiff 5-90 day jail sentence of a $25-$250 fine or both.

— if reckless driving causes bodily injury to any person the law provides a 30-day to six months sentence in the county jail, a $100-$500 fine, or both.

— under the section headed: "littering and environmental protection," the new law states: "No person shall operate, nor shall the owner permit the operation of, an off-highway vehicle in a manner likely to cause malicious or unnecessary damage to the land, wildlife habitat or vegetative resources."

— lighting equipment, brakes, mufflers and emission control equipment are now required. Headlights must be visible for 200 feet and there must be a red taillight. Mufflers must meet noise levels specified by law. Excluded are organized racing events. Emission control specifications will not apply until 1978.

Additionally, the new law provides for vehicle identification and registration.

The state will issue certificates of ownership, valid for two years and expiring on June 30. There is a $5 fee for issuance and renewal of owner's identification certificates.

Additionally the State assesses a special fee of $6 for an identification plate or some similar device denoting the owner.

The money collected on these fees goes into a special Off-Highway Vehicle Fund and is earmarked to "carry out programs of planning, acquisition, development, construction, maintenance, administration, and conservation of trails and areas for the use of off-highway vehicles."

Also up to 50 per cent of this special fund may find its way into cities, counties, and "appropriate special purpose districts" for recreation projects. These districts must match dollar for every two dollars out of the Off-Highway Vehicle Fund to qualify.

All the new laws apply to motorcycles, motor-driven cycles, snowmobiles, sand and dune buggies, all-terrain vehicles, jeeps, as well as regularly registered motor vehicles used off-road.

Highway Patrol Talks Truckers To 55

SACRAMENTO — The California Highway Patrol is trying to figure out ways to get truckers to lighten up on their accelerator pedals.

Highway Patrol commissioner Glen Craig believes getting the state's commercial vehicle drivers together may help.

Craig is in the process of setting up a day long conference with operators and drivers of commercial vehicles and buses to "exchange ideas on the problem of obtaining 55 mph speed limit compliance."

Craig has invited six major organizations; the California Trucking association, Greyhound Lines, Amalgamated Transit Union, Continental Trailways, Independent Truck Owners and Operators Association, and the Western Conference of Teamsters, to participate and help develop a plan improving compliance.

The Commissioner said his mail has been "critical of truck and bus drivers for exceeding the 55 mph speed limit and creating hazardous conditions on the highways."

"The public image of the industry," said Craig, "seems to have become tarnished judging by the volume and nature of the letters received by the Highway Patrol and other segments of state government."

Craig described the commercial vehicle industry as a "potential highway pace setter".

"A high level of compliance by trucks and buses helps passenger vehicles to comply," he explained.

No date for the conference has beeen set.

Treating Burns

Although considerable medical progress has been made in the treatment of serious burns, these injuries frequently become infected, sometimes leave permanent damage and often are fatal.

There are three types of burns: first degree, in which the skin is reddened but not blistered, and with sunburn; second degree in which blisters develop; and third degree, in which the full thickness of the skin is destroyed.

The third degree burn is, of course, the most serious. How serious it is depends on how much of the body is involved. If the area of the skin destroyed is larger than a 50-cent piece, some kind of skin graft usually is required.

If less than 10 per cent of the body surface is involved, the injury, though serious, usually is not fatal. If 40 per cent or more of the body surface is involved, the victim frequently does not survive.

When a doctor treats someone with a severe burn, he/she tries to combat the shock and then curb infection. The body reacts to severe injuries such as burns by drawing salt solution out of the circulating blood. In addition, blood in the burned area or adjacent to it may be destroyed.

This depletion may produce a state of shock. To offset it, salt solution and sometimes blood are replaced in the circulation. As soon as the patient has recovered from initial nausea, which may last 24 hours or more, fluids are given by mouth.

To combat infection, the doctor may apply an antibiotic ointment over the burned area to help control the surface infection. In spite of this preventive effort, infections are a serious problem in treating severe burns and the use of systemic antibiotics is essential when an infection has developed and invaded the blood stream.

Home Remedies

There are home remedies for minor burns. For a first degree burn, immediately place the burned area into ice water or cover with ice cubes until the pain stops. Simple, small second degree burns in which blisters have formed can be treated by gently washing the area with soap and water and then applying a plain, dry, sterile dressing which should be left undisturbed for three to five days. Never open the blisters — not even with a so-called "sterilized" needle.

If the burn is extensive, call a doctor at once and get the victim to a hospital, according to the doctor's instruction.

If you have to care for someone who has suffered a major burn under circumstances in which medical care is not available for several hours, feed the victim a solution in which one level teaspoon of table salt and one-half teaspoon of baking soda have been added to one quart of water. An adult weighing 160-180 pounds can be given as much as three or four quarts of this mixture in 24 hours.

Preventable Accidents

Burns are appallingly common and almost always preventable. Use caution and common sense in protecting yourself and your family against burns.

- Keep children away from matches, cooking utensils on the stove, hot liquids.
- Do not leave children alone in the house.
- Keep clothing well out of the way of stove, matches, electric or gas heater. Purchase flame retardant clothing, if possible.
- Do not smoke in bed (or anywhere else you are likely to fall asleep), nor when your gas tank is being filled, nor when you are checking the gas burner on the stove.
- Do not light fires with gasoline.
- Keep flammable fluids, especially gasoline, outside house and garage, away from open flame and water heaters.
- Establish exit routes in your home, especially for the bedrooms. Practice using these routes with your family. Establish a safe meeting place so, in case of fire, you will know everyone is out.
- Place fire extinguishers near the exits.

Auto Accessories Protection Advice

The increasing popularity of expensive car accessories, such as CB's and tape decks, is a principal cause of the increase in auto theft and theft from autos, says the S.D. Community Relations Dept.

A substantial number of vehicles are burglarized or stolen for the accessories alone but such theft can be prevented by common-sense precautions, SDCR added.

"Auto Theft", a fact sheet publishd by the SDCR, outlines simple procedures to safeguard cars and its accessories.

Colson Story in S.V. Church Film

"The New Chuck Colson" a film describing what really happened to the White House Hatchet man will be shown at Spring Valley Friends Church, Bancroft and Kenwood, Sunday at 7 p.m.

Charles W. Colson, described by TIME Magazine as "Tough, wily, nasty and tenaciously loyal to Nixon," at the peak of a brilliant law career became one of the President's closest confidants.

In December, 1973, during the Watergate Scandal, the headline "Colson Makes Decision for Christ" jarred Washington.

His surprising plea of "guilty" was followed by long months in federal prison. Something real had happened to Colson. See that dramatic "happening" in the film Sunday. It's free.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

County of San Diego
1600 Pacific Highway
San Diego, California 92101
Telephone No. (714) 236-3419

TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS, AND PERSONS:

On or about January 21, 1977, the above-named County will request the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) for the following project:

Project: County of San Diego -- Spring Valley Community Center

Purpose: Construction of a community center within an existing park

Location: Community of Spring Valley, County of San Diego

Estimated Cost: The estimated cost of the project is $150,000.

An Environmental Review Record which documents the environmental review of this project is on file in the office of the San Diego County Environmental Analysis Division, 9150 Chesapeake Road, San Diego, California 92123, and is available for public examination and copying upon request.

The County of San Diego will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U. S. Department of Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The County of San Diego is certifying to HUD that the County of San Diego and the Honorable Jim Bates, in his official capacity as Chairman of the Board of Supervisors, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decisionmaking, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the County of San Diego may use the Block Grant funds and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases:

(a) That the certification was not in fact executed by the chief executive officer, or other officer of applicant approved by HUD; or

(b) That applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding, or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process.

Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Par. 58) and may be addressed to HUD at 2500 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, California 90057. Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. No objection received after February 7, 1977, will be considered by HUD.

Valle de Oro: A Community Plan in Review

Members of the Valle de Oro (VdO) Citizens Executive Committee — two years ago charged with the duty of preparing a comprehensive community general plan document for the Spring Valley, La Presa, Casa de Oro, Mt. Helix and Rancho San Diego area — are nearing the end of their task.

A final draft of their report is in the hands of County officials in the Integrated Planning Office and, except for minor revisions, is expected to be adopted as a phase of the County's General Plan sometime this year by the Board of Supervisors.

What follows is a summary of the contents of the final draft. The report contains findings and objectives concerning ten aspects of the community: Land use, housing, open space, recreation, conservation, noise, seismic safety, public safety, transportation and scenic highways.

'Semi-Rural'

It advocates maintaining the semi-rural character of the area. The goal for the land use segment is to "encourage development which will lead to a community with a balance of land uses, which will conserve natural and made-made resources, which will provide a pleasant, safe environment for present and future residents."

Wishing to avoid the stereotype suburban neighborhood characterized by row-upon-row of look-alike housing on concretized thoroughfares, the committee wrote into the plan several objectives to maintain a "rustic" look.

The report calls for the preservation of semi-rural residential neighborhoods and encourages development of additional "rural residential" neighborhoods.

Innovative development designs are encouraged to avoid the monotony of tract development.

Offstreet parking should be in the plans of any new development, the report says. Mature trees and shrubbery should be preserved. Roadside billboards and on- and off-site advertising should be controlled. The report calls for the elimination of billboards and control of signs so they continue to be "compatible with the neighborhood character."

Construction of streetlights, sidewalks, curbs and gutters in rural areas should be limited, it continues.

Within the framework of the semi-rural environment, the community wants to encourage the development of light industry in order to provide more jobs for residents.

The Industrial-park concept is recommended.

Low Income Housing

The subcommittee on housing derived as a goal a distribution of housing adequate enough to provide households from all socio-economic levels with an "adequate living environment."

Responding to a projection by the Comprehensive Planning Organization that 990 housing units for low and moderate income households will be needed in the area within the next ten years, the committee adopted as an objective development of such housing in the Casa de Oro shopping area and scattered within the Rancho San Diego complex to augment similar opportunities in Spring Valley and La Presa.

The report reveals that Valle de Oro is comprised of 15,053 housing units, up nearly 20 per cent since 1970.

The single family home accounts for 79 per cent of the planning area's housing. Multi-family units account for 12 per cent, mobile homes, 9 per cent.

A third of all housing units are rentals, while the remainder are owned. Most (more than 95 per cent) are in sound condition, according to 1975 special census data.

The planners would like to see a gradual but limited increase in the ratio of medium and high density residential development, but they encourage construction of new units to be compatible with the "residential neighborhood character."

To impliment those objectives, they have set as policy the development of moderate and low income housing adjacent to the Casa de Oro shopping area (Campo rd.), scattered within the Rancho San Diego complex and into the more southern Spring Valley and La Presa neighborhoods.

The report also recommends County measures to provide government assistance with low and moderate income housing and home ownership.

Open Space

State law calls for an open space clause in every general plan for preservation and production of natural resources, for outdoor recreation and for public health and safety.

In the VdO study, planners encourage the preservation of what open space remains. Their goal is to restrict further development in steep slopes, canyons, floodplains and agricultural lands.

About a third of VdO is land with a 30% or greater slope. The Spring Valley Creek, generally running parallel to Bancroft dr., southward to Sweetwater rd. and the South Bay Freeway — and the Sweetwater River and reservoir to the south are the two recognized flood plains in the planning area.

Although no specific plans to alter present housing patterns may appear in the report, the committee did list as an objective limiting land use in areas where natural hazards, such as flood plains, exist.

They also resolved to restrict development on steep slopes to agriculture — more than 1,500 acres in VdO are presently used for agricultural purposes — for very low density housing and for recreation.

Also, open space is mentioned as one way to provide a "buffer" between industrial and residential property, another goal of the community plan.

Recreation

High hopes are written into the plan for recreational facilities in VdO. But the County Board of Supervisors threw a haymaker at residents living in unincorporated areas last year by adopting a policy that acquiring and developing local parks is contingent on locals paying for their maintenance.

A Spring Valley Parks and Recreation District presently provides a variety of recreational services and is a locally tax-supported entity, but it serves only the southernmost section of Spring Valley and La Presa.

Furthermore, a park district north of this area in more central Spring Valley failed to woo voters this past election—freezing any plans the County may have had for park land dedication there.

The Supervisors have condoned development of a regional park system in lieu of local parks. The Sweetwater reservoir area is the regional site serving Spring Valley, the remainder of the East County and the South Bay communities.

As for local park development, the report details objectives to carry out if the community ever agrees to pay for maintaining its park with more taxes.

Park areas are to be identified right away, the report states. These recreation areas are to be situated adjacent to or near schools and a joint use agreement made between park and school districts.

They should be located on public or semi-publicly owned land and should have community centers built to serve "all age groups and interests."

Maps have been drawn up for a local network of riding and hiking trails to augment plans for similar facilities in the Sweetwater Regional Park's proposed system.

Finally, areas of existing or potential archeological significance would be dedicated for recreational use. This would prevent development on lands such as those surrounding the historic Bancroft House on Memory ln.

A builder was stopped in the middle of landclearing last year on acreage near that site when the Spring Valley Historical Society complained to the County. The local citizens' group didn't want land said to be potentially rich in historical artifacts to be dug out and used for an apartment complex.

Artifacts revealing ancient Indian and other cultures have been uncovered recently by archeological study teams. This subject is covered in more depth in the conservation element of the report.

All the well-meaning plans of the recreation element of VdO are mute unless the County actively pursues another means of funding besides local property tax, a recommended policy of the community plan, or unless residents are persuaded to support park maintenance.

Conservation

Water, vegetation, wildlife, minerals, cultural and historical sites and air quality each fall under the guidance of the conservation phase of the plan.

The chief concerns for water in VdO are the Sweetwater Reservoir, Hansen's Ponds and the 100-year floodplain.

Domestic water use is almost entirely from imported sources since it is readily available to the VdO area.

An adopted policy will conserve water and biological resources in Hansen's Ponds and the Reservoir by designating them Resource Conservation Areas (RCAs).

Another policy encourages the Otay Municipal Water District, serving parts of Spring Valley and the South Bay, to establish "a safe, effective sewage reclamation process."

Objectives are to place strict controls on wastewater discharge and encourage use of reclaimed water for purposes such as irrigation.

This section reiterates intentions to keep flood prone areas confined to open space-type uses.

Vegetation and wildlife goals of the VdO report generally support the preservation of threatened or endangered plant and animal life.

While there are no wildlife species within the planning area which are recognized as rare or endangered by the Federal Department of Interior, several species of plants are considered scarce or endangered.

The planning committee has included action policies to preserve specific forms of plant life in specific places.

Examples are "Sticky lettuce Dudleya, near Worthington st."; Otay tarweed, northwest Sweetwater Reservoir; San Diego Ambrosia, Sweetwater rd. at Jamacha rd.

Thirteen sites of archaeological significance are numbered but not identified in the plan as areas to preserve for their historical value. The site location, the report explains, is not made public to minimize the possibility of vandalism.

Nineteen other sites, mostly historic homes, are listed as RCAs.

Other sections of the conservation phase call for preservation of mineral resources (sand and gravel), street light pollution and air quality.

Energy

The report covers energy only briefly. It sets goals encouraging energy saving transportation and energy conservation in building design and location.

The point is made that high residential densities near commercial centers are advantageous from an energy conservation standpoint, because they reduce consumer travel time. This may explain in part why the committee recommends higher residential densities near the Casa de Oro, and South Spring Valley business districts.

Noise

The acoustical environment has gained significance with planners as part of the ecology movement. Most of the noise in the VdO environment comes from "surface travel", more commonly known as cars, trucks and motorcycles.

Major sources from motor travel are the main thoroughfares in the planning area — Freeway 94, Jamacha rd., and Campo rd.

The only areas listed as having low noise levels are the Sweetwater River and Jamacha Junction areas.

Objectives ask for building designs, traffic patterns and controls to minimize noise. A policy decision recommends a study which will more completely assess noise sources, including aircraft.

Seismic, Public Safety

Seismic Safety and Public Safety elements of the report are similar in scope.

Both list objectives which deal with educating VdO residents about potential dangers of natural and manmade disasters, such as earthquakes, flooding, fire, crime and nuclear mishaps.

They include a recommendation that a study be made on the seismic potential of the singly known fault in the planning area — the Lyons Valley Fault. "The exact nature of this linament and its potential activity have not been determined," the report says.

Another recommendation asks the County Sheriff to review its current protection standards in the area and increase the level of service.

Highways

The finally separate elements are transportation and scenic highways. Findings show strong evidence that VdO is a "bedroom community" in the true sense of the phrase.

The community counts an average of 170,000 vehicle trips a day, and 78 per cent leave the planning area. The statistics confirm that, relative to the county as a whole, "there are few commercial, industrial and recreational attractions in the area."

Three bus routes in the San Diego Transit system and one route on the private San Diego Economy Line offer limited service to residents in the planning area. Trips by car account for 95 per cent of all vehicular activity in VdO. Only about 6 per cent of its residents do not own cars and more than half the household own two or more cars.

Objectives in the transportation section call for landscaping projects on the major arterial highways, provided by tax supported Community Service Agencies and by County Department of Transportation. County Transportation is asked to replace trees and shrubs it removed during highway maintenance and improvement projects.

An overall goal is to separate, as much as possible, the pedestrian, bicycle and motor vehicle traffic in the planning area.

Public transportation, the authors say, needs to be improved in VdO.

They further advocate certain changes in the freeway system serving the area.

They support the construction "as soon as possible" of the proposed I-125 freeway linking the present segment to the north, at S.R. 94, with the South Bay Freeway to the south. Plans call for building that strip of freeway just west of Sweetwater rd.

Also needed, say the planning committee, is a northbound ramp onto Rt. 125 from westbound 94. The new Spring st. interchange failed to take into consideration the eastern sources of traffic seeking a quick route to Grossmont Center and nearby localities.

They urge further study of plans to turn Jamacha blvd., between Campo rd. and the S. Bay Freeway, into an expressway. It presently is a single-lane highway whose lack of sidewalks and 50 mph speed limit has caused concern of parents who have children walking the highway to Monte Vista High.

Freeways shall not divide residential neighborhoods, the report adds.

Almost no state or federal money is available for scenic highway projects, the report says. Nonetheless, the area's goal is to use the stated scenic highway corridors to enhance the appearance of the scenic, historical and recreational areas that lie in view within those corridors.

The strip of Freeway 125 between 94 and 8 and Willow Glen Drive are existing scenic routes.

The study concludes with recommendations for three specific planning areas: Rancho San Diego, Dictionary Hill and Hansen's Ranch.

New Set of Laws Activated; Many Affect Consumers

There are a lot more laws affecting Californians today than there were a couple of weeks ago.

Many of them are consumer protection laws — laws contrived to protect the average guy.

A list of some of these were issued by the State's chief law officer, Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, as a means of informing the public.

Discount Buying — Regulates organizations which provide their clients discount goods and services.

Dance Studios — Partial refund to students who die or become disabled.

Impounds — Requires financial institutions to pay at least 2 per cent on home loan impounds.

Bread — Permits bakers who sell bread on the premises to sell loaves weighing less than 8 ounces. Defines "standard small loaf" as 8 ounces.

Information — Prohibits telephone companies from charging for directory assistance.

Credit Cards — Requires 30-day written notice for firm to cancel except in cases of default of payment.

Mobile Homes — Manufacturers suggested retail price must be listed by manufacturer.

Prescriptions — Prescription drugs permitted under specified circumstances.

Schools — Bilingual education required for public schools (Chacon).

Elections — Authorizes all-mailed ballots in districts subject to Uniform Dist., Election Law.

Income Tax — Prohibits Franchise Tax Board from giving out personal income tax information except under specified conditions.

Right to Die — Authorizes withholding of life support systems from adults with terminal illness if patient has so directed.

Minors — On evidence of designated injuries to minors juvenile courts shall be used as evidence of need of proper and effective care, or of unfitness of his home.

Insurance — Prohibits insurance companies from reducing benefits on disability policies when Social Security payments are increased.

Compensation — Raises benefits in worker's compensation.

Dognappers — Restricts dog catchers from seizing dogs when the dog is on its owner's property.

Massages — Allows cities and counties to license massage parlors.

Criminals — Determinate sentencing law becomes effective July 1.

Juvenile Courts — Substantial reform.

Probation — Prohibits paroles for persons convicted of two serious crimes.

Shoplift — Permits merchant to detain shoplifters and increases penalty.

Crime — Requires life imprisonment without possibility of parole in cases of first degree murder by torture with intent to kill.

Toilets — Requires water-conserving toilets in new buildings starting in 1978.

Sunshine — Tax credit up to $1,000 for homeowners installing solar energy devices.

There are many others, Younger notes. However these will have the more widespread effects.

Gotch Gets LAFCO Executive Post

The S.D. Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) has appointed Michael J. Gotch as its new executive director.

Gotch, 29, has been acting director for LAFCO since September and has been with LAFCO since January of 1973.

As executive director Gotch is the principal advisor to the commission and prepares the background information, reports and recommendations on the proposals submitted to the seven member commission. He also represents the commission at State and County functions. The salary range for the position is $25,105 to $27,664.

LAFCO is a seven member commission made up of representatives of local government agencies: two from the Board of Supervisors, two representatives selected by the 13 cities in the county, two members selected by the independent districts in the county and one public member selected by the commission. LAFCO's purpose is to organize the efforts of individual government agencies and commissions and prevent overlapping of their services.

Gotch is a graduate of S.D. State U. with a masters degree in public administration.
